Software Source Code Agreement

General:

At NHRC LLC/NHRC Repeater Controllers (NHRC), we understand that a significant component of any microprocessor-based project is the software. In order for an experimenter to learn from the project, the source code for the project's software must be available for inspection and tinkering. However, NHRC derives almost all of its income from the sale of microprocessor-based devices, including the NHRC-PXP. NHRC has released source code for projects in the past, and was subsequently dismayed to find its intellectual property being sold and its business harmed as a result. Consequently, NHRC will no longer widely distribute source code for its projects.

NHRC does, however, want to allow experimenters to receive the utmost value from this project. In order for this to happen, experimenters must have access to the source code. To this end, NHRC will make the NHRC-PXP source code available to the experimenters who execute this Software Source Code Agreement.

What you may do.

You may examine, copy, and modify the software for your own personal use in any way, except as detailed in the next paragraph. The software remains the property of NHRC-LLC.

What you may not do.

You may not sell or in any other way distribute or release the software source code or resulting assembled binary code, in its original or in any modified form. You may not include portions or fragments of the software in any other work that you sell or otherwise distribute. You may not disclose the software to any other persons, or through inaction or negligence, allow the software to be accessed by any other persons. You may not place the software on computer systems that are not under your personal and direct control.

This Agreement is to be construed in accordance with the laws of the State of New Hampshire in the United States of America and shall terminate twenty-five (25) years from the effective date of this Agreement.

Please sign and date this form below, and send it by post to NHRC. By signing the form, you indicate your agreement with these terms. We will email the source code to you upon receipt of this executed agreement.
